Select Poetry.

THE OLD BURYING GROUND.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

Our vales are sweet with fern and rose,
Our hills are maple-crowned,
But not for them our fathers chose
The village burying ground.

The dreariest spot in all the land
To death they set apart;
With scanty grace from Nature's hand,
And none from that of Art.

A winding wall of mossy stone,
Frost-flung and broken lines,
A lonesome acre thinly grown
With grass and wandering vines.

Without the walls the birch tree shows
Its drooped and tasseled head;
Within the staghorn sumach grows
Fern-leafed, with spikes of red.

There, sheep that graze the neighboring plain,
Like white ghosts come and go;
The farm-horse drags his fetlock chain,
The cow-bell tingles slow.

Low moans the river from its bed,
The distant pines reply;
Like mourners shrinking from the dead,
They stand apart and sigh.

Unshaded smites the summer sun,
Unchecked the winter blast;
The school-girl learns the place to shun,
With glances backward cast.

For thus our fathers testified—
That he might read who ran—
The emptiness of human pride,
The nothingness of man.

They dared not plant the graves with flowers,
Nor dress the funeral sod,
Where, with a love as deep as ours,
They left their dead with God.

The hard and thorny path they kept;
From beauty turned aside,
Nor missed they ever those who slept
The grace to life denied.

Yet still the wilding flowers would blow
The golden leaves would fall,
The seasons come, the seasons go,
And God be good to all.

Above the graves the blackberry hung
In bloom and green its leaf,
The harebells swung as if they rung
The chimes of peace beneath.

The beauty nature loves to share,
The gifts she has for all,
The common light, the common air,
O'ercrept the graveyard's wall.

I knew the glow of eventide,
The sunrise and the noon,
And glorified, and sanctified,
It slept beneath the moon.

Select Miscellany.

To Young Men.

To the lackidasical youth, with an inner consciousness of a fitness for a "great life mission," we commend the following sensible advice:

"It is easier to be a good business man than a poor one. Half the energy displayed in keeping ahead, that is required to catch up when behind, will save credit, give more time to business, and add to the profits and reputation of your word. Honor your engagements. If you promise to meet a man, or do a certain thing at a certain moment, be ready at the appointed time. If you have work to do, do it at once, cheerfully, and therefore, more speedily and correctly. If you go on business, attend to the matter promptly, and then, as promptly, go about your own business. Do not stop to tell stories in business hours.

If you have a place of business, be found there when wanted. No man can get rich by sitting around stores and saloons. Never 'fool' on business matters. If you have to labor for a living, remember that one hour in the morning, is better than two at night. If you employ others, be on hand to see that they attend to their duties, and direct with regularity, promptness and liberality. Do not meddle with any business you know nothing of. Never buy any article, simply because the man who sells it will take it out in trade. Trade is money.—Time is money. A good business habit and reputation is always money. Make your place of business pleasant and attractive; then stop there to wait on customers.

Never use quick words, or allow yourself to make ungentlemanly remarks to those in your employ; for to do so lessens their respect for you and your influence over them. Help yourself, and others will help you. Be faithful over the interests confided to your keeping, and in all good time your responsibilities will increase. Do not be in great haste to get rich. Do not build until you have arranged and laid a foundation. Do not —as you hope or work for success-spend time in idleness. If your time is your own, business will suffer if you do. If it is given to another for pay, it belongs to him, you have no more right to steal that, than money. Be obliging. Strive to avoid harsh words and personalities. Do not kick every stone in the patch; more miles can be made in a day by going steadily on, than by stopping to kick. Pay as you go. A man of honor respects his word as he does his bond. Ask, but never beg. Help others when you can, but never give when you cannot afford to, simply because it is fashionable. Learn to say no. No necessity of snapping it out dog fashion, but say it firmly and respectfully. Have but few confidants, and the fewer the better. Use your own brains rather than those of others. Learn to think and act for yourself. Be honest. Be vigilant. Keep ahead rather than behind the times. Young men, cut this out, and if there is folly in the argument, let us know.

Thrilling Love Story.

"Jim," said a young sailor to his cousin, who lived a long way inland, and had never seen the "bigwater," "Jim, did you ever think of goin to sea?"

"You mean going to see the gals, I suppose; I've been to see the gals lots of times."

"That ain't what I mean," said the sailor.

"But what about going to see the girls? Can you give me an account of any of your adventures?"

"Well," replied Jim, "I never make a practice of telling such things. 'Taint a good plan; but I had a little larkin' scrape last spring, and as you live away off to Boston, and don't get such chances, if you'll agree to keep mum, I'll tell you all about it."

"I will keep perfectly dark," said the tar who was beginning to feel interested, "go on with your story."

"It does make me feel kinder ugly when I think on't, I'll be hanged if it don't, but it's all over now. You see, Suke Baker and I used to take great shine to one another. Suke was one of your right-down smart, well-looking and good-behaving gals. She appreciated me, and I appreciated her, and we never should had no trouble if it hadn't been for the old man. He was a darned old snake-in-the grass, and made us more trouble than all the rest of the family. Suke and I never 'joyed ourselves, for he was always sneakin' round and thro'n' out hints, and makin' himself as hateful as he was homely. I got sick on't, and so did Suke. I suppose the old scamp didn't like me, and didn't want me there. I don't know what else to make of it, for he told me, more than twenty times, to leave, and not come again.

"Suke's room was in the end of the chamber, and I told her one time to leave her window up, and I'd come in, and we'd have a bit of a visit. I know'd she wouldn't hesitate to do it, for I'm honest, and very 'spectful in my behavure. Well, after the folks were all in bed, and the house was still, I goes and gets a ladder, and puts it up to the window. I then pulled off my boots and crawled up. Suke met me at the window sill, and a tickelder couple you never see than we was; but just as I was trying to clamber in, the confounded ladder slid, and down it went, thunder to lick, making noise enough to wake up the whole town. It hit one of the lower winders, and knocked it all to smash. I just caught by the tip ends of my fingers on the winder sill. Suke, seeing me falling, made a grab for me, and got me by the hair of the head; and 'tween us both, I just made out to stay, but I thought 'twould been as well if I hadn't been there, for I could neither get in nor get away.

Old Baker heard the racket, and out he came, in his shirt, to see what was to pay. He sees me hangin' there, and I suppose the old whelp mistrusted something, for he went and got a fish pole, and begun to welt at my limbs, really in earnest. I tell you, Bill, I was in a very harrisin situation. There I was, 'spended by the hair—for Suke did the most of the hanging on—and old Baker, as mad as a hoe, jist wallopin' me down with a hickory fish-pole. What was to be did. If Suke and I should let go, I should fall, perhaps, and break my neck. If Suke and I hung on, old Baker would lick me to giglets with his infernal fish-pole. I was never so unpleasantly situated in all my life. I would gin two shillings for lightning enough to strike the old whelp dead; but all the lightning I see was in my eye. I tell ye, Bill, there was some there, or something else; for I could see stars of all kinds and colors, just as thick as splatters. But, thinks I, I can't stand this, by a jug full, so I took and let go. Suke hung on like a beaver, and saved most half my hair, but down I went. Old Baker want 'specting me quite so soon, and I hit him on the head, and knocked him stiffer than a louse.—I got up and went home, but I felt pooty grouty, I tell you."

Josh. Billings on a Live Man.—The live man iz like a little pig; he is weaned young, and begins for to root airly.

He is the peper sass of creation—the alspice of the world.

The man who can draw New Orleans molasses in January thru a half inch anger hole, and sing Home Sweet Home while the molasses is running, may be strictly honest; but he ain't suddent enough for this climate.

The live man is as full of bizziness as a conductor of a street car; he is often like a hornet, very bizzy; but about what the Lord only knows.

He lites up like a cotton factory, and ain't got any more time to spare than a school-boy has Saturday afternoon.

He iz like a decoy duck, always above the water, at least eighteen months during the year.

He iz like a runaway hoss—he gets the whole of the road.

He trots when he walks, and only lies down at night because everybody else duz.

The live man is not always a deep thinker, he jumps at conclusions just as the frog duz, and don't always land at the spot he iz looking at.

He iz the American pet, a perfekt mistery to foreigners, but has done more (with charcoal) to work out the greatness of this country than any other man in it.

He don't always die rich, but always dies bizzy, and always meets death like an oyster, without any fuss.

Distinction Without Difference.

How strange, and yet how true it is that the human race, though created and preserved by the same unseen power, nourished and sustained by the same all-wise Providence, children of a common parent, and inhabiting the same earth, should be at once visited by such marked distinctions. Men of all kindreds, and nations, and tongues; men born in the snow-clad regions of the poles, and men reared and matured beneath the scorching blasts of the intertropical regions of the equator; men of literature and art, and men of ignorance and want, all considered personally and collectively, present, to every curious observer, a striking instance of the fact, that man, though considered with reference to color, and location, may present aspects quite dissimilar, yet, in regard to matters affecting men individually, there always was, and, I presume, ever will be a disposition of humanity to make distinction without difference. Look at different parts of the globe, and what do you behold? In sections you see man itting upon his great throne of unlimited power, wearing upon his head the royal diadem, and upon his shoulders robes of superiority, and upon his feet the sandals of honor. From his mouth issues forth imperative commands and withering imprecations, and in his hand is found the glittering sword of execution. While, on the contrary, his subjects are compelled to perform the most menial offices, and the most servile tasks; yet, in regard to disposition, talents and virtue, and, perhaps, in every other respect, as to qualification, frequently the servant might take the place of the master. Was man made to rule his fellow man? Was man placed upon this earth to bow the mind of his neighbor, though equal in natural endowment, to shape his actions, to check his passions, and to keep mind, body and soul in complete subjection? Monstrous inconsistency! Shocking distinction! How is it in our country? With a few modifications and anomilies, America might bear comparison. How often does wealth take the place of character, and lineage usurps the place of honor? How often is the humble man neglected and despised, while his rich neighbor is exalted and honored? How often is wisdom discouraged, and foolishness promoted? It is dangerous to our institutions. It is perilous to freedom, while it is the keystone to despotism. We, as American citizens, should, therefore, be careful to avoid, studiously, everything, social or political, which has a tendency to mark distinction without difference. H. H.

Women Assuming their Proper Places.—Women have been making public opinion, while men thought they were only writing love stories. Through even the poorest and most shallow of these, might be traced a womanly protest against the standard opinion of men, in regard to themselves, and a mental and moral assertion of the individual rights of the sex. They have been deepening in thought, and emancipating themselves from dogmas, and clearly defining their position, while they seemed only to complain and lament over undefined injuries, and the sense of something wrong, that was supposed to be native to the sex, and a part of their mental constitution, till men got to saying, "nothing will ever satisfy a woman."

This discontent was the most hopeful thing about a woman, and argued a protest when her discontent should have reached to the dignity of exasperation. It had marred the harmony of her life; it had imparted an indescribable sadness to her pen, and now she has given the world the declaration of her rights. She speaks now, and the world must, and will hear.

It seems to me that men are very blind who refuse to look this matter in the face; and women are more to blame, who have not trained their sons to nobler views, and a better appreciation of what is due to their mothers and sisters.

Men complain of our imbecilities, and justly so; but the only remedy is in the success of the very opinions which they treat with contempt. The only antidote to the corruptions and abuses of the world is, in the acknowledgment of the equality of woman, and the conviction, on her part, that she ought to earn her own bread honestly, as men must earn theirs.—Elizabeth Oakes Smith, in Packard's Monthly, for June.

Ventilate Your Cellars.—Many a dangerous fever has been caused by the foul air from dark, damp and unventilated cellars. Confined air, without the purifying influence of sunlight, soon becomes impure and unwholesome. Most cellars serve as a reservoir for this impure air, which, in addition, is loaded with decomposing organic matters, and foul gases, given off from the masses of decaying vegetables with which they are stored. The foul air finds its way slowly and constantly into the upper rooms of the house, there to poison the systems of its occupants. Cellars should be kept as clean and pure as any portion of the house. They also should be well ventilated, which can easily be done by having a flue opening from the cellar into the chimney, and by having one or more openings from the outside to admit the fresh air. Cellars should also be kept dry, as well as clean and well ventilated.

Nine Reasons for Woman Suffrage.—Miss Francis Power Cobbe, an English writer, gives the following reasons for enfranchising her sex, in a pamphlet largely circulated in England:

1. Because women fulfill the property qualification on which political rights are based in England.
2. Because the exclusion of women entail a moral and intellectual loss to the community at large.
3. Because the interests of a non-represented class are liable to suffer.
4. Because the legislature of England neglects women and favors men.
5. Because women are taxed and do not share the privileges attached to that burden.
6. Because their legal disabilities place women at a serious disadvantage in competing with men in numerous business offices and employments.
7. Because, in consequence of the denial of the suffrage to women, men are led to despise and oppress them and treat offences against them with levity.
8. Because the denial of the right to the direct exercise of their judgement has weakening and degrading effect on the minds of women.
9. Finally, we desire the franchise for women, because, while believing that men and women have different work to do in life, hold that, in the choice of political representatives, they have the same task to accomplish, namely: The joint selection of a Senate, which will guard with equal care the rights of both sexes, and which shall embody in its laws that true justice which shall apt prove itself not only to the strong, bu also to the weak.

A Good Retort.—A humorous young man was driving a horse, which was in the habit of stopping at every house on the roadside. Passing a country tavern, where were collected together some dozen countrymen, the beast, as usual, ran opposite the door, and then stopped, in spite of the young man, who applied his whip with all his might to drive the horse on; the men on the porch commenced a hearty laugh, and some inquired if he would sell that horse?

"Yes," said the young man, "but I cannot recommend him, as he once belonged to a butcher, and stops whenever he hears any calves bleat." The crowd retired to the bar in silence.

—A woman with a child entered a photographic gallery in Newburg the other day, and previous to placing it for a picture the woman subjected the young one to a vigorous spanking. The artist interfered, when he was informed that she was only trying to get up a fine color in the child's face, in order that it might be represented in the picture with blooming cheeks.

Here is a bit of French romance which is edifying.

"Well, Gaston, I'm told you are married old boy."

"It is true, Lewis."

"What sort of a woman is your wife?"

"Why, she is no beauty, but has a good deal of money and a very pretta chambermaid."

—A countryman who had never paid more than twenty-five cents to see an exhibition went to view the "Forty thieves." The ticket-seller charged him seventy-five cents for a ticket. Passing the pasteboard back, he quietly remarked: "Keep it, mister, I don't want to see the other thirty-nine," and out he marched.

Pure Things.—There is nothing purer than honesty, nothing sweeter than charity, nothing warmer than love, nothing brighter than virtue, and nothing more steadfast than faith, These, united in one mind, form the purest, the sweetest, the richest, the brightest, the holiest, and the most steadfast faith.

—Geo. Sarman, a Dutch Jew, who a few months ago imposed upon the people of St. Petersburg by making them believe that he was Gen. W. T. Sherman, and appeared with success at Stockholm as the youngest son of Secretary Seward, is now picking oakum in an Austrian penitentiary.

"Thomas, spell weather," said a schoolmaster to one of his pupils.

"W i-e-a-t-h-i-e-r, weather."

"Well, Thomas, you may sit down," said the teacher. "I think that is the worst spell of weather we have had since Christmas."

A young lady at Troy, while engaged in conversation with a gentleman a few days since, spoke of having resided in St. Louis. Was St. Louis your native place?' inquired the gentleman. 'Well yes—part of the time,' responded the lady.

A house maid, who went to call a gentleman to dinner, found him engaged using a tooth-brush "Well, is he coming?" said the lady of the house, as she returned.—"Yes, ma'am, directly," was the reply.—"He's just sharpening his teeth."

—I pressed her gentle form to me, and whispered in her ear, if, when I was far away, she'd drop for me a tear. I paused for some cheering words, my throbbing heart to cool; and with her rosy lips she said, "O like! you're such a fool."

"May I ask the time of day, sir?"

"Certainly, sir."

"Then, what time is it?"

"Well, now, really, sir, I don't know."

Who is to Blame ?

It is part of the daily business of the Watchman and the "Court House Clique" to cry taxes, heavy taxes; but it is only done in order to conceal their own action and the gross mismanagement of the public affairs of the county. Every day they are increasing the local and county taxes, and yet they claim to be, par excellence, the friends of the people. The new jail, built at a cost to the tax-payers, of fifty-thousand dollars, is, as we have before stated, perfectly worthless except as a splended residence for the Sheriff.—Prisoners remain in it if they are so disposed; but if they have been guilty of some crime that would bring upon them heavy and condign punishment, they are sure to make their escape before trial and conviction. Never, in any county in the State, was there such gross mismanagement of the people's funds on the part of the county officers, as in Centre county for the last six or eight years, and never, we venture the assertion, have so many lucrative fortunes been made in the same length of time, by those whom the Democracy have elevatad to power. The county taxes constantly increasing, and men in county offices at small, or at least not large, salaries, growing fat, and slick, and rich. Adding house to house, and farm to farm. Why is it that those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow and pay the heavy county taxes imposed upon them by Democratic officials, cannot amass fortunes as rapidly as those whom they have elevated to power, and chosen to manage the public business of the county? Is it not an establish'd fact that no man can honestly become suddenly rich? That man does not live who amassed a large fortune in a few years, and did it honestly and in fair and legitimate trade. Sudden wealth, fortunes amassed in a few years, are always, or nearly always, the result of a combination of sharpers who, for selfish purposes, band together to cheat and rob the people—the honest hard-working tax-payers of the country. This system of robbing is called, by these men, speculating !—Look back eight or ten years and see how many men were poor, or in moderate circumstances. Look to-day and see those same men sporting fancy horses, owning large farms, horses and stocks. Some of them were county officials. Some of them could tell all about the new jail, its cost, the entire contract, the secret partners, &c., &c.

People can think as they please ; but of one thing we are very certain, and that is, it takes an honest business man, farmer or mechanic almost a life time to accumulate a competence, to say nothing of a princely fortune. Nevertheless our Democratic county officials succeed in a few years, and on small salaries, to amass wealth. How is it done? Is it necessary for the tax-payers of centre to ask why their taxes are so heavy? You can ask till doomsday and the "Court House Clique" will refuse any answer or explanation.

But a few days ago and a part of the jail wall tumbled down. Workmen are now engaged in rebuilding it. Repairing the new jail, built at a cost of $50,000! Who gets the spoils this time? Who is to blame for such mismanagement? The Commissioners the Architect or the Contractors ? The tax-payers want to know.

Take Courage.

We have, says the Potter county journal, everything to encourage us. Our taxes are growing lighter each year, our indebtedness smaller, and our credit stronger. In the last three months, under the administration of Grant, the National debt has been decreased over $16,000,000 by simple economy; meanwhile our revenue increases. Secretary Boutwell is reducing our obligations at the rate of $2,000,000 a week by purchasing in open market. At this rate of decrease we shall cancel over $100,000,000 of our bonds during this year, and should this thoroughly economical policy be pursued, we can pay every dollar we owe within thirty years. Let us exercise patience and labor earnestly for the accomplishment of this great object. To do this we must be united and persistent in our efforts, not being led astray by every wind of doctrine or faction; but with an untiring zeal, an unwavering love for Republicanism and all that it comprehends, go steadily onward toward our great future. With a firm faith in the Ruler of Nations and a determination to do equal justice to all men, what, we ask, have we to fear? Verily nothing. but everything to urge us to greater deeds and more glorious triumphs.

Connecticut has ratified the Fifteenth Amendment by a Legislature elected since it was adopted by Congress. How will the Democracy account for that? Will the Arithmetic man go into ecstacies and by the cogitations of his fertile brain and uncommonly lively imagination figure up a great Democratic gain? If so, we fear the remainder of his days will be spent in a vain attempt to show the length of time that will elapse before everybody will be in the Democratic party. The sixth of July Virginia will adopt her new constitution and elect her State officers. During the Summer months Mississippi and Texas will follow in her footsteps. When Congress assembles in December next the last of the rebellious sisters will be admitted into the National family within ten years from the outbreaking of Secession. Then the old wounds will be healed; old differences forgotten, and all will unite in restoring peace, harmony and prosperity. And while we look forward with joy to all this, let us not forget the sacrifice it has cost, but cherish with holy devotion the memory of those who laid down their lives a ransom at the feet of insulted Justice.

Grand Banquet to Dan'l G. Bush, Esq.

Spec'l Correspondence of the Inquirer.

BELLEFONTE, June 2, 1869.

Last evening a grand banquet was given by the residents of this place to Daniel G. Bush, Esq., a gentleman whose enterprising and liberal spirit, sound judgment and extensive means, have contributed greatly to the growth of Bellefonte within the last five years. The entertainment was a very elegant one, and took place at the new hotel, near the railroad depot, lately erected by Mr. Bush. The company sat down at eight o'clock, and the catering was admirably attended to by Mr. Bigony, the manager of the hotel.

At the close of the feast, a number of letters from distinguished gentlemen, who could not be present on the occasion, were read by Major Charles H. Hale, of the Committee of Arrangements, and speeches were made by John Irwin, Jr., Esq., who presided, and by Messrs. Brown and Hutchison, the proprietors of the Bellefonte Republican, Mr. Bush also delivered a neat and appropriate address, thanking his fellow-townsmen for this evidence of their appreciation, and modestly referring to the efforts he had made to increase the resources, and to improve the waste places of Bellefonte. The party broke up at ten o'clock, without a single incident to mar the pleasure of this occasion.

Mr. Bush is a remarkably far seeing and successful man. Instead of hoarding up, as so many do, the large means which he had accumulated in a few years by judicious and well-timed investments, he, in 1864, engaged in real estate enterprises, and has, since that time, erected about twenty or thirty new buildings in different parts of the town. He, at first, built an arcade, with six stores on the first floor; a number of offices and two rooms for societies on the second floor, and a grand hall for balls and lectures on the third floor, at a cost of $50,000. Next, he built a mansion for himself, costing $20,000, and, in order to divert the attention of capitalists to a section of the town well adapted for business purposes, but heretofore unimproved, Mr. Bush has erected a magnificent hotel, of four stories in height; 180 feet front, by 120 feet deep, on High street, near the railroad depot, but on the opposite side of Spring creek.

The energy and goaheaditiveness of Mr. Bush stimulated many other gentlemen of wealth in Bellefonte to the building of extensive manufactories, handsome stores and private residences. Among the latter may be mentioned as costing over $20,000, the new and elegant mansions of ex-Governor Curtin, Messrs. Robert Valentine, D. M. Wagner and D. G. Bush. The Presbyterians and Episcopalians are just finishing two large and imposing edifices for divine worship.—The total amount of capital invested in all these undertakings is estimated at $600,000.

Bellefonte, under its new auspices, cannot fail to attract large numbers of the dwellers in our eastern cities to a summer vacation within its boundary. Trout fishing is abundant here, and the walks and rides, amid romantic and beautiful scenery, in the fertile valleys and their mountain fastnesses, are unequalled in any other region.

General Hartranft

Speaking of Gen. John F. Hartranft as a possible candidate for Governor, the Washington Reporter says:

Gen. Hartranft is a young man of fine abilities, high character and strict integrity. Perhaps no public man in the State possesses such an unblemished reputation. He is a lawyer by profession, but when the war broke out he raised a regiment in his own county (Montgomery) and led it to the field. By conspicuous gallantry he rose, before the war was ended, to the rank of Major General. His gallant conduct at Fort Steadman just before the close of the war will long be remembered. He was elected to the office of Auditor General in the fall of 1865, and re-elected last fall. He has developed the highest abilities and business qualifications in the department over which he is placed. He is very modest and unassuming in demeanor, dislikes eclat or notoriety, and never seeks anything like prominence. He is universally popular with the soldiers, and if nominated will receive an enthusiastic support from that element. Had he not been made Auditor General, he would have received the nomination three years ago instead of Geary."

AGAIN.—For unavoidable reasons the History of the 49th P. V., is crowded out of this number. It will be continued next week.

A Few Plain Questions For Free Traders.

1. If the present Tariff is "prohibitory," or, in other words, prevents buying what we want from foreign countries, how does it come that we do buy one hundred millions of dollars worth of merchandise more than we sell them of our products during this year of Grace 1869?

2. If the "enormous and grinding taxation" we are now paying to "monopolists," or, in plainer terms, the customs now raised on foreign imports, is "grinding" our people into "poverty and want," why is it that a constant stream of immigrants will come from nations now enjoying Free Trade to our languishing, tariff-cursed country?

3. If Free trade were declared to-morrow, and foreign manufacturers were permitted to compete in our markets with our own, would not fabrics made by European workmen at fifty cents a day drive those made by American workmen at two dollars and fifty cents a day, out of the market?

4. When the American manufacturer finds himself undersold at home, by those engaged in the same business in Leeds, or Manchester, or Cornwall, in England, must he not either discharge his hands and close his mills, furnaces. &c., or reduce the wages he is now paying to his employees?

5. Must not the mechanics, under this state of affairs, either stop work or submit to the reduction, or find something else to do?

6. Do the Free Traders want the workmen of America to work for lower wages than they now get? Or, if not, do they want them to give up skilled labor (and so lose the years spent in learning a trade), and work at Agricultural pursuits?

7. Will not our country under Free Trade, which must inevitably destroy her manufactures, become absolutely enslaved to the countries which furnish us with everything we need from a fork to a steam engine; and will we not, when declaring war against England—for instance—or she against us, experience some difficulty in the way of cannon, muskets, etc?

8. How do you propose to pay coin interest on the bonds, which we solemnly proposed to pay, when you have destroyed the only source of coin revenue we now have, or can have, until we resume specie payments?

Answers to the above are respectfully solicited.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 4, 1869.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:

The absorbing topic for the past two weeks, in this city, has been the ceremony of decorating the graves of the Union soldiers, at Arlington, Virginia, which was done on Saturday, the 29th ult., by the hands of some twenty-five thousand who delight in honoring alike their countries and her fallen defenders.

Preparations for the event were begun in due season, and everything arranged for the occasion on a grand scale. By direction of the President, the Executive Departments were all closed, and thousands of the employees attached thereto availed themselves of the opportunity to take part in the programme of this sacred duty.

I send you the entire poem and oration of the day, and will curtail my letter accordingly, that you may have space to print any extracts therefrom that you may see fit.

From early morning the streets were thronged with carriages and pedestrians, and the aqueduct Bridge leading from Georgetown to the Virginia side of the Potomac, was one seething human mass from morn till noon. About 12 o'clock, M., a Battalion of Marines, headed by the famous "Band," arrived, having been detailed for special duty on the grounds during the ceremonies, and shortly after, the President, Cabinet, Foreign Ministers, Orator, Poet, and hosts of notables made their appearance. At 1 P. M., the national salute was fired by Dupont's Bat'y, stationed directly in front of the Arlington Mansion, and immediately afterward the assemblage was called to order by the Chairman of the Committee of arrangements, who introduced the President of the day, Col. S. A. Duncan, Grand Commander of the Dep't. of the Potomac. After the Pres't. had formally announed the purpose of the gathering, and the Marine Band performed the "Miserere", a fervent prayer for the blessing of Heaven upon the Nation, and the work before those present, was offered up by Rev. J. P. Newman, D. D., Chaplain of the Senate. The order emenating from the Head-Quarters of the Grand Army of the Republic, was then read by the chairman of the Committee of arrangements, followed by the ode: "Our Native Land," rendered by the "Berthoven Club" of Washington, D. C. Next in order came the POEM OF THE DAY, by Francis DeHaes Janvier, the gifted author of the "Sleeping Sentinel," and other well-known "Poems of the War," followed by the ORATION, delivered by the Hon. S. S. Fisher, Com'r. of Patents. This was indeed a masterly effort, and the streaming eyes and stifled sobs which greeted one on every side during the delivery of portions of the speech, proved how deeply the feelings of the audience had been touched. After a chorus by the "Arion Quartette Club," entitled "Prayer," the assemblage proceeded to the decorating of the graves, and the work ceased not until "every soldier's mound" received its fitting tribute.

A pleasing circumstance occurred at the decoration of the Monument to the memory of the "Unknown" soldiers, which the children from the "Orphans' Home," numbering between sixty and seventy, were engaged in placing the wreaths, crosses, &c., on this monument, they received an addition to their number in the person of Miss Nellie Grant, the little daughter of the President, who also brought her tribute to the memory of the heroes whose names are only known to God.

The other cemetaries in the neighborhood of the city, in which any of the Union dead are buried, were all visited and the graves strewn with flowers.

Several friends of the rebel dead, buried at Arlington, not satisfied with having 364 other days in each year on which to honor their fallen friends had made preparations for a counter-demonstration on this day. As the day had been set apart as holy alike to the country's defenders, and the cause for which they fell, the Committee very properly refused to allow this counter-demonstration.

Of course this brought a howl of rage from all the Democratic papers of the city, which has been echoed from all parts of the country. The polite, but resolute, Lieutenant of Marines, who was charged with seeing that "no graves should be decorated but those of Union soldiers," has been represented as a brute in human form, as cursing and jeering those who attempted to place flowers on the rebel graves, &c., &c. It is needless to say that nothing of the kind of conduct, alluded to by our Democratic friends, occurred, The unpleasant duty devolving upon the officer mentioned, was performed, but in a gentlemanly manner.

We would like to ask these persons who are so exercised at "the outrages to the Confederate dead," why they never have a word to say concerning the outrages committed on the tombs of the Union soldiers, buried in the South, by the Confederates, not by refusing to place flowers, but by mutilating and defacing the monuments erected by the U. S. Government in such a way as oftentimes to render the name wholly unintelligible. Truly, "consistency, thou art a jewel."

Truly Yours,
KAPPA.

For the Republican.

PORTLAND, ME., May 28, '69.

DEAR REPUBLICAN:

It may seem strange that a stranger should address himself to you, and so far removed as "down East"; but, when it is told you that I am not unknown in Bellefonte, and your paper is not an utter stranger to me, it may be pardonable in me for writing.

Portland is the commercial metropolis of Maine, and a growing city.—Three years ago it was nearly ruined by the great fire on the 4th of July, but has risen like Phœnix from her ashes, and is to-day a monument of energy and pluck, displayed in the long lines of new streets, not excelled in architectural beauty, in New England. Hardly a trace of the devastating element can be found. The City Hall—the pride and boast of the city—is far superior in excellence and elegance to the former one. The new Custom House and Post Office are marble beauties, whose equals, in every particular, it will be hard to find; and all over the burnt district, have sprung up buildings superior in every respect to the old ones and ornamenting the city with their tasteful exteriors. One thing cannot be given to the city so quickly as her magnificent trees, whereby it so truly won the title of "Forest City." These must be of slower growth, yet they are coming surely, as their long lines indicate.

Business is dull. High rents and fast living, with a tight money market, are telling tales of sorrow on many families who have flourished in "first circles," until overtaken by the tide that sweeps thousands each year from the front ranks to humble places.—There must be low rents, more economy, and attention to business, before we can say we are prospering as a city. Fast horses and high living are ruining hundreds of our young men, as in other cities. The "Maine Law" is a dead letter practically, and Neal Dow will have to try it over again before he can bring up the tipplers to his standard, or compel the authorities to enforce existing laws.

Politically, Maine is Republican, as all the world knows. Her harmony and concert of action have won for her the motto "Dirigo" in politics. This year that harmony is seriously threatened by a refusal of the Temperance Party to co-operate with the Republicans. The Temperance question has been going on from bad to worse, for several years, and its friends have appealed to, and even threatened, all parties with something politically awful if they did not come to a direct issue on this troublesome moral question. This year they propose to nominate a candidate of their own, at any rate if Chamberlain is re-nominated, or if some Temperance man is not taken up.—However hot the battle may wax in the Republican camp, the Copperheads are looking on very complacently, much as Justice Monkey is supposed to have done when weighing his cheese! If the Copperheads had a decently presentable candidate, there might be some hope of winning once more the office of State; but all the public men of former Democratic principles, espoused the cause of the Union at the commencement of the rebellion, and of course became Republicans, and those who followed the lead of the South have become so identified with disloyalty and treason, by words and acts, that they cannot face the storm successfully. Treason may appear pleasant at first, but it becomess "odious" at last, as the Copperheads will find, whether there are two or three candidates in the field.

Portland is being agitated greatly by her projected Railroads towards the West. The Portland and Ogdensburg, and Portland and Rutland have been surveyed, and estimates of cost made. Both companies are confident of building their roads, and $750,000 have been voted to the former already.—Both roads are needed to bring the trade to Portland that naturally centres there. Rich and fertile lands yet undeveloped await them, and millions of acres of timber lands are in the direct touch of both roads.

The Sebago water-works will be completed by next "Fourth of July," and then this city may boast of as pure water as any in the Union. The Lake is situated 18 miles from the city, is of the purest water, and 18 miles long by 1½ miles wide. It is about 400 feet above tide water, so that fire engines may be dispensed with by attaching hose to hydrants. The cost of the works will be about $1,500,000.

The farmers are busy, and more than a usual breadth of grain, and crops generally, have been put in. The trout-fishing season has commenced, and strangers and citizens are alike improving this opportunity of "casting the fly." Big stories are told of five and seven pound trout that have succumbed to the fishers, and a day's work is considered good if 100 "beauties" are put in the basket; but, methinks, many are disposed to adopt the "eight hour system" as defined by Hoar! At any rate, trout are abundant, and Maine can compete with any of her sisters in the size and number of her spotted swimmers.

The "jubilee" at the "Hub" is creating much excitement here as the time approaches. We shall send a delegation who can lift their voices "long and loud," as they demonstrated within a short time. It will be a big affair for Boston and will fill her accommodations to their utmost capacity. It seems as if it must be a success, and it is the wish of your correspondent that it may prove so. Yours, &c.,

C. C.

"GRANDFATHERS' STOVE."

Our grandfather's stove, what a funny old thing,
So deep, so wide and so tall;
Now the people would say, who are stylish and gay,
"It was only a hole in the wall."

It matters not what, it was pleasant to see
When night's mantle was flung over all;
Grandfather take down his good book and read
By the light from the hole in the wall.

As the sturdy young men rolled in the great logs,
They would laugh at each wintry squall,
Whilst grandma would sit on her old chair and knit
By the light from the whole in the wall.

The girls then wore home spun, and so did their beaux's,
For pride was a principle small;
And courting was done and hearts have been won
By the light from the hole in the wall.

The neighbors were friendly wherever they'd meet,
With a word of true kindness for all;
And joy was complete to hear voices so sweet
Ring round that old hole in the wall.

In those days we know, folks card not for show,
Of improvements knew nothing at all;
But 'twas really no joke, when great clouds of smoke
Rushed out from the hole in the wall.

But those days are now o'er, we shall know them no more,
And all those old fashions have flown;
Whilst the solemn and gay are coming each day
To purchase the famous "OLD HOME."

Coming not only in couples, but in scores, as hundreds of good and wise men and women have done before, to look upon this magnificent stove, which is acknowledged to be the best cooking stove of the age. Remember the place,

COMPLETION OF THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

GREAT RUSH TO STERNBERG'S.

Sung to the Tune of Yankee Doodle.

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And now comple connection's made,—
An enterprising notion.

The mighty work at last is done,
So speedily and brisk, oh!
And now in ten days we can run
From here to San Francisco.

No more we take the ancient route,
The stage, a horrid slow thing;
It banged the passengers about,
And wore out all their clothing.

CHORUS, for the end of each verse:

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And we buy clothes from A. STERNBERG
A most delightful notion.

Through passengers by the Pacific Railroad will call at the store of A. Sternberg, before starting, and provide themselves with a complete outfit of the elegant and substantial Spring and Summer Clothing, the very best assortment of which will always be found at A. Sternberg's Store.

JOB WORK.—Posters, Circulars, Bill Heads, Cards, Paper Books, Job Work of all kinds, neatly executed at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE, at reasonable rates.

SAVE MONEY.—If you want posters, circulars, bill heads, cards, paper-books, first-class job work, plain or fancy, call at the REPUBLICAN office. All work done at Philadelphia prices.

FARM FOR SALE.—Bond Valentine offers his splendid farm, of 195 acres, within one and a half miles of Bellefonte, for sale. For full particulars, inquire of Mr. Valentine, or at the office of the REPUBLICAN.

ALL O. K.—The young man Kreps, stated by last week's Centre Hall Reporter, as having sustained fatal injuries from a falling timber at a barn raising, is, we are given to understand, in anything but a dead or dying condition. He is, all in all, a much livelier and healthy "item" than we often find in our bucolic cotemporary.

SEVERE.—We learn that the late severe storm did much damage in Penn's Valley, succeeding, by the aid of the violent wind prevailing, in giving sundry barnes, and smaller out-buildings, a novel and headless appearance. Our Agricultural Editor being absent, weeding onions, we cannot give our farming friends other advice than to accept the result as best they can, and re build at their leisure.

DON'T be discouraged if, occasionally, you slip down by the way, and others tread over you a little. In other words, don't let a failure or two dishearten you; accidents will happen; miscalculations will sometimes be made, things will turn out differently from our expectations and we may be sufferers. It is worth while to remember that fortune is like the skies in the month of April, sometimes cloudy, and favorable, and it would be folly to despair again in seeking the sun because to-day is stormy, so it is unwise to sink into despondency when fortune frowns, in the common course of things, she may be expected to smile again.

Y. M. C. A.—Why is it that our citizens—our christian citizens—are so slow to move in the organization of the Young Men's Christian Association in our town? Friends of religion, and of the youth of our town, once more we urge upon you the necessity of immediate action in this matter. If you would save the youth—the young men of our prosperous town—why not avail yourselves of the means that the Almighty has placed within your reach? Will no one take the lead in this important work? Christian Ministers of Bellefonte, to you we look—to you we appeal. Would you enlarge your borders, and the sphere of your influence? Go to work, at once, and organize a Young Men's Christian Association.

WONDER who those two "gay and festive young ladies (?) from Lock Haven were, who took the buggy-ride to Jersey Shore, a few days since? Does anybody down there know? Jersey Shore wine, or whiskey, must have been very good. Ditto "Shore" cigars. We have heard of masculine "sports" getting behind horse-flesh, and having a first class "Spree"—break-neck driving, cursing, swearing, blackguarding, and all that included; but 'tis seldom one hears of alcohol getting into the "strings," when held by a woman. But we challenge any two "sports masculine" to get up a better practical definition of the word "spree," than did these two bibulous females. Ask the farmers about Chatham's run.

CONFLAGRATION.—A disastrous fire occurred in Wayne tp., Clinton Co, on Saturday night 29th ult. The steam saw-mill of James M. Quiggle, Esq., nearly one hundred feet square, was burned to the ground, with all its machinery, including a large shingle-mill. The mill was leased by Raum, Myers & Co., who were owners of most of the machinery, belting, &c. This firm had gone to great expense and trouble to put the mill in good working order, by introducing improved machinery therein, and by cleaning out McElhattan Run (upon which it stood) for a distance of over five miles above the mills, to facilitate transportation of logs, and had a heavy stock on hand, ready for the saw. The mill had been in operation but a few months, since being finished. The present loss to the company is far less than the prospective loss, being unable to fill their contracts. The manufactured lumber was nearly all saved. The loss is variously estimated at from $8,000 to $12,000. No insurance by either party.

HARVEST.—All over the country the prospects for an abundant crop are good. It will require hard work to cut and gather the thousands of acres of wheat in this county. Shortlidge & Co. propose to come to the relief of the farmer, with the celebrated Marsh Harvester. This is a great reaper, said to be superior to anything ever offered. It is, in the largest sense, a labor-saving machine. It saves half the cost of harvesting—two men doing the work of four.

It saves all the grain; not a straw touches the ground, till bound.

It is a simple machine; has only half as much gearing as an ordinary reaper.

It is light-running; of this you will be convinced when you see it run. The wheels are large; this is the reason it runs so light; moreover, there is but little gearing, and the weight is evenly divided on the main wheel.

Another great advantage is, there is no side draft. It is as easy to turn as a cart or sulky. It is the best machine for lodged and tangled grain. The question of economy in the use of this Harvester is certainly now beyond all controversy. Sample machines can always be seen at the office of Shortlidge & Co., Bellefonte, Pa.

PROMISING.—From numerous sources we learn that the peach, apple and pear crop, in Penn's Valley, is very flattering for an extensive yield. All kinds of grain are likewise promising, and we sincerely congratulate all parties.

CHANGE OF TIME.—The Bellefonte and Pine Grove Stage will hereafter leave Bellefonte at 2 o'clock P. M., and arrive at Pine Grove at 6 o'clock P. M., Returning, leave Pine Grove at 6 o'clock A. M., arriving at Bellefonte at 10 o'clock A. M., daily, Sundays excepted.

JAMES KREPS,
Proprietor.

DID any of our readers ever hear a Whip-poor-will whistle an hour after sunrise? We do not wish to be charged with getting off a stale joke, for we did hear one, a few mornings since, whistling "whipp-poor-will," quite lustily, more than an hour after sunrise. That "burd" must have gone blind, and didn't know it was daylight. We had just arrived from "dreamland," yet it made us feel sleepy again.

LECTURE.—The lecture delivered by Rev. Francis O'Shea, on Wednesday evening last, was a very learned and able one. The Catholic church was well filled. The Rev. lecturer was very clear, indeed, on every point, but more especially where he illustrated to his audience the folly of boasting of certain rights, which were out of their power to enjoy—entirely beyond the reach of the "bulk of mankind." Such rights, he contended, were not rights at all.

FIRE AND STORM.—We received, last week, the particulars of a severe storm that passed over parts of Furguson tp., doing much damage. We also received the particulars concerning the burning of Erb's Foundry, in said township, but they reached us too late for our last number, and they were, unfortunately mislaid. We hope our friends will continue to report all accidents, fires, &c. All reports should be sent so as to reach us on Monday.

A PEST.—Clouds are said to have their silver lining, and we have often thought silver linings at times wore very heavy mourning border. Again, as last year, while the crops have done nobly, in spite of continued cold rains, we are assured that the crops of pestiferous jumping-jack grasshoppers is most bountiful and unprecedentedly lively. Grass, particularly clover, is receiving a deal of close attention from these busy-bodies, and we are fearful their ravages will prove universally disastrous. Is there no relief?

CORRESPONDENCE.—The following correspondence explains itself. We expect to see all of our people, from town and country, present at this grand farewell levee to Centre county's most distinguished and favorite son. The Court House will be opened at about 5 o'clock, p. m., Thursday evening, and remain open until our distinguished guest is escorted to the cars. It is hoped, and expected, that our band will furnish music for the occasion:

BELLEFONTE, June 5, 1869.

HON. A. G. CURTIN: Dear Sir:—The undersigned, your personal friends and neighbors, irrespective of party ties or partisan affiliation, not willing that you should leave the country on your important mission as Minister Plenepotentiary to the Court of Russia, without having received some manifestation of the high esteem with which they regard you as a citizen, philanthropist and statesman, desire that you appoint an early day, at the Court House, when it will be convenient for you to meet your fellow citizens and neighbors, those among whom all the days of your youth and manhood have been passed, and with whom you have been associated in business, to enable them to bid you farewell, and wish you and your family God speed, trusting that He who holds the destinies of individuals and nations in His hands, will restore you and family, in due time, to our midst, and permit you, once more, to enjoy the pleasures of home.

BELLEFONTE, June 7, 1869.

GENTLEMEN:—I am much obliged for the opportunity you offer me to meet my friends and neighbors, and say farewell to them before my departure from the country.

As I expect to leave Bellefonte at 9 o'clock on Thursday evening, any time during that day will suit my arrangements.

As I go to a distant country, and the separation from you may be for a length of time, it will be most agreeable to me to spend the last hours of my stay here, with my friends, and I suggest 6 o'clock p. m., for the occasion.

I am truly your friend,

A. G. CURTIN.

PLUM, VENANGO CO., PA., Dec. 6th 1868.

DR. SAGE & CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—Your excellent Catarrh Remedy has accomplished for my wife more than we could have believed without having tried it. We had given up all hope of ever effecting a cure in her case. We had already tried almost every other remedy proposed by the medical faculty without the least benefit, some really were an injury. Her sense of smell was destroyed, and her vision becoming much injured from the disease having produced closure of the "tear duct," and even the sense of taste was much impaired. With the use of three boxes only, of your Remedy, I believe the Catarrh is entirely healed. What a great work it has done in driving away the dark brooding dispair that had settled on our minds. I shall ever recommend your Catarrh Remedy to all with whom I meet afflicted with the dread disease.

Yours truly,

JOHN WRIGHT.

Dr. Sage's Remedy will be sent to any address by mail on receipt of sixty cents. Address R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE Chicago Republican tells a straight-forward, honest story, and pays a just tribute to the country newspaper. It speaks our ideas in better and stronger language than we could if we tried all day. We earnestly commend it to the perusal of our readers, and hope they will not forget the plain truths it teaches:

"What tells us so readily the standard of a town or city as the appearance of its paper? And its youth or age can be as well defined by the observing as by a personal notice. The enterprise of its citizens is depicted by its advertisements, their liberality by the looks of the paper. Some papers show a good, solid, healthy foundation, plethoric purses, and a well to-do appearance generally; others show a striving to contend with the grasping thousands around them, trying hard to wrench out an existence from the close-fisted community around them. An occasional meteoric display in its columns of locals or of editorials shows what it could do if had the means, but cannot continue in the expensive work until support comes, which ought to be readily granted. A newspaper is like a church; it wants fostering at the commencement for a few years; then, as a general thing, it can walk alone, and reflect credit upon its location. Take your home paper; it gives you more news of immediate interest than New York or other papers; it talks for you when other localities belie you; it stands up for your rights; you always have a champion in your home paper; and those who stand up for you, should certainly be well sustained. Your interests are kindred and equal, and you must rise or fall together. Therefore, it is to your interest to support your home paper, not grudgingly, but in a liberal spirit, not as a disagreeable duty, but as an investment that will amply repay the expenditure."

For the Republican.

WORK FOR GOLDWIN SMITH.—If we had the honor to know Goldwin Smith, the eminent English scholar and historian, who lately accepted a Professorship in Cornell University, in New York, we should say to him that, if he desires to confer the greatest of all favors in his power upon the youth of this country, he will make each one of them his pupil by writing a condensed, accurate and faithful history of England, from his Democratic standpoint, for the use of American schools and colleges, in all, or most of which, the prejudiced and untruthful work of the Tory, Hume, is now the text book. The connection of the United States with England, by the ties of blood and language, are nothing as causes of the resemblance of the two countries in so many points, when compared with the jurisprudence, religious faith, political usages and representative system, with the same in the mother country. Hence, it is of special importance to the cause of popular government, on this side of the Atlantic, that the growth of these should be described, and illustrated by some one to whom the phrases, "popular liberty," the "rights of the people," "representatives," etc., have a meaning that no English Tory could make them convey. As our government is the heritage of a revolution which had its origin as far in the past as the struggles in England in 1644, thence down to 1868, it is necessary that these great events should have a commentator, heartily in accord with the aspirations of the people, and the extension of the Democratic idea.—It is in his account of these two critical periods in the conflict of the English people with prerogative, and the divine right of priests and kings, for the preservation of their liberties, that the unfairness, nay, the malignity, of Hume, is most apparent; yet, from him, in all our institutions of learning, the instability of the foundations, upon which popular governments like ours are supposed to rest, are taught, and the rights of the people are denied. How much practical mischief has been the result of his errors and prejudices, as they have aided in forming the principles, moulding the opinions and impelling the action of the men who have done so much in shaping the destiny of this land, no one can tell; but, as all errors and falsehoods are pernicious, it is not probable that those backed by his authority have been without their logical effects. Surely, none have had wider circulation, nor more general credence, than his.

Of Goldwin Smith's pre-eminent qualifications for the task to which we entreat him—his fitness regarded as a scholar, and as one fully in sympathy with the cause of popular liberty—there can be no doubt; hence, if he has made our country his home, and means to make teaching his field of honor and usefulness, we disclaim being presumptuous in pointing out the way in which, instead of being heard only by an University class, he may make himself the teacher of a great nation.

PENN VALLEY.

FURNITURE.—By refference to the advertising columns of the Republican, it will be seen that Jno. Brackbill is still engaged in the Furniture business at the old stand on spring street. He advertises furniture of all kinds as low as it can possibly be sold in this market.

GRAND BANQUET.—The supper given by our citizens to D. G. Bush, on Tuesday eveng, June 1, is so well and fully chronicled by the special correspondent of the Phil'a Inquirer, whose account we publish in another column, that we deem it unnecessary to add much, if anything. The supper was a magnificent one, and proves that Mr. Bigony, the manager of the Bush House, is a first class caterer, and understands his business in every particular.

BEWARE! BEWARE!!—Beware of patent-right dealers who have territory to sell.

Beware of bogus traveling insurance agents.

Beware of bogus stock companies; they are generally humbugs.

Beware of lottery-ticket venders and gift enterprises.

Beware of anybody, and all concerns that propose to sacrifice everything to make you wealthy.

Beware of transient dealers and traveling men with farm implements to sell; and for everything you want, go to some regular dealer in your own town; and then, if you get a bad article, or implement, you know where to take it to be exchanged.

TURNING.—Our town is certainly growing very rapidly, and destined, at no distant day, to be a city of huge proportions. New enterprises are springing up all around us. In another column of the REPUBLICAN will be seen the advertisement of Williams & Canan. These gentlemen have erected a building near the Bellefonte Planing Mill, and are now prepared to do all kinds of turned work. They also manufacture Cottage Furniture—the very best, and at the most reasonable rates. Cabinet makers thro' out the county, and Central Pennsylvania, can be supplied by this enterprising firm, with everything they may need in their line.

With Mr. Williams, the senior member of the firm, we have been long and intimately acquainted. He is an honest and upright man, and a first class mechanic. He was a brave and faithful soldier during the late war, and is now as true a citizen as he was a soldier.—We wish this firm abundant success.

County Correspondence.

CENTRE HALL, June 7th, '69.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN:—Delightful Willis, prince of word painters, has given us some most charming summer reading from "Under a Bridge;" but we, bridgeless Bohemian, must be content to "incubate" under "adverse circumstances." Locals, rich, racy, relishable locals, are what your Editorial palates most do crave; but they are as rare and exceptional as a Yankee in a Dutch settlement, or a Jew in the Synagogue of the elect.

We have, for the nonce, a most refreshing aroma arising from the Democratic fish kettle in this embryo metropolis which, if not smelled by the lower rank of angels has, undoubtedly, risen as high as the promises, praises, prayers or curses of Democratic politicians generally do. So many years ago that the memory of modern picnickers runneth not thereto, the late decapitated servant of Uncle Sam's mail bags, in this burg, holding fast to the purely Democratic principle that spoils are spoils, whether garnered by night or day, covertly secured the removal of the post-office from Old Fort, and entered upon his duties as postmaster, a position which he has managed, by shrewd fugling, to retain, in fact, since the days of Jimmy Buchanan. At this late day, the office, under the new Administration, has been given to a Republican—one in sympathy with the party in power. Tears, groans and dolorous lamentations have followed by night and by day; remonstrances and petitions have been filed; every lever of real or supposed power has been pressed into service; and even known Republicans have been importuned and button-holed to bring about the desired reversal of the recent appointment. "Alas! for Yorick!" In Nature, many things are possible; but that a Democratic skin—though it be a wolf's, should cover over three successive Republican Administrations, would be no more wonderful, in the order of things, than disrespectful to the memory of the still writhing Wolf—skinned. To keep his hand in, in case the desired removal occurs, the late dispenser has secured an order from his Democratic friends, and a few weak-kneed and generally unreliable Republicans, to have their mail sent to the mercantile establishment of the "would-be," so as to accommodate his customers. Humbug—twaddle! We are not surprised at the impudence exhibited, or that the unterrified should do the bidding of their master—as they were never alarmingly given to thinking for themselves—but that Republicans should so far forget their party fealty, and embarass a worker in their ranks, is not less surprising than shameful. Do Democrats divide honors or emoluments? Do they not, in this hamlet, in local improvements, assert the right to rule because of their numerical domination? It is by just such shiftless, shameful—nay, criminal recreancy to the requirements of the party, that the Republicans of this county suffer defeat, and chew the cud of needless disappointment. We sincerely trust that all earnest, thinking, true Republicans, will have the courage and decent manliness to at once discountenance and condemn the contemptible Democratic dodge.

The "Old Fort Horse Thief Detective Association" held its annual meeting at the Old Fort hotel—Rob't H Porter, proprietor—last Saturday. The attendance was gratifying, and the condition of the finances and organization of the Association equally congratulatory. It being the stated election day, the following named gentlemen were chosen as officers for the ensuing year:—President, John M. McCoy; Vice-Presidents, Thos. Stiver, Samuel Keller; Secretary, H. Dasher; Ass't Sec'y and Brander, Henry Royer; Treasurer, J. H. Keller. The Association was organized in 1854, and comprises many of our best farming citizens. Being most efficiently officered, and completely organized in all its appointments, the night sneaks, having a penchant for horse stealing, will sensibly "govern themselves accordingly."

A large number of new buildings, both tenements and barns, are receiving attention this summer, and invitations to the laying of foundations, and the raising of upper structures, are delightfully numerous.

CENTRE HALL.

CONCERT.—Madame Josephine Schimpf's Vocal Concert, on Monday and Tuesday evenings last, was, indeed, a grand affair. It is seldom we hear such singing, and when we do, it always reminds us of that better country where, from the representations we have of it, the chief employment of the redeemed will be singing the praises of Him who hath washed us, and made us white in the "blood of the Lamb."

WEDNESDAY MORNING, June 9, '69.

Humbugs and Sharpers.

There are, at the present time a great many men trying to live by their wits instead of honest labor. They are engaged in the manufacture of articles "needed in every household," which once known "no one will willingly do without." Or, they set to work to produce perpetual motion, or some other machine that will enable them to make a fortune in a day. Or they will take up some old and discarded variety of fruit or potato, or some other seed; which, under a new name, they palm off on the credulous. Or they will take a load of stoves, which they will sell with "all the furniture complete," but, which furniture they could not bring along, because of the heavy roads, or heavy loads: they will agree to take a note for the full price of the stove and furniture, which note is always traded off or sold to second parties, and has to be paid at maturity, or the cost of a law-suit added. Of course the furniture (which was to come along in a few days) never comes, and the stove cost double its worth, and the scoundrels who did the swindle are never to be found. We sometimes feel sorry to see innocent and confiding parties thus taken in: and again we feel and say, "Served him right—he ought to have known better!"

The best way for our readers to do is, to order their goods from respectable and well-known establishments, who are permanently located and who have a reputation at stake, and let all itinerant agents and peddlers severely alone. If a man offers you an article of any kind which you can examine at the time, and which you need (if you do not need it, it will be dear at any price)—purchase, if you are so inclined; but on a future delivery, give no obligation. only as the article is delivered and comes up to the recommendations.

Spring is the time when sharpers from the city will, like the locusts of Egypt, come down on the country, and devour every green thing. We have known farmers who purchased rare and costly fruit trees, shrubs and flowering plants, of which beautifully colored plates were shown, only to find them old and worthless sorts sold under a new name. "Far fetched and dear bought," will apply to all such.

Another dodge is, the sale of patent rights. Farmers ought to leave such things alone, became, generally, they are not familiar with inventions nor inventors—who, if they have a really good thing, know enough to go into the manufacture of the same and make the most of their discovery. So, also, in the purchase of farm machinery; and the great importance of making a judicious selection, especially since farmers have become so dependent upon machinery, justifies the occupation of a little extra space to offer a few special suggestions.—The disposition to cling to old and well tried implements is commendable, and while too much care cannot be exercised in exchanging that which seems to have rendered good service, for a more improved machine, the farmer ought not shut his eyes to the fact that defects in his old may be remained in the new machine. Improvement—genuine and substantial—is the order of the day, and those who ignore the progressive tendencies of the age will soon be left behind by those who turn every new development to their advantage.

Especially care ought to be taken to get good machinery. By this we mean, that which is good mechanically. It is far better to pay a little extra and get an article that will last a life time than to buy-because it seems cheap—that which at best can't last but a few years. Good farm machinery can't be built on cheap principles, and those who understand their interests will get the BEST, let it cost what it may.

POULTRY IN LARGE NUMBERS.—The London Field lately had an article on the failures that seem to have universally occurred in attempts to keep fowls in large numbers. In conclusion it says:

There are two reasons for this inevitable result; one is, that when a large number of fowls are crowded together or kept in one place, the ground becomes tainted with manure, and disease invariably breaks out. This is more particularly true of chickens, for in every attempt to rear a large number in a confined space, the mortality is excessive.

The employment of an incubator in this climate will always be found a failure, for this simple reason that it is impossible to rear the chickens when they have been hatched; the hatching process is sufficiently easy; but chickens are of no value whatever without you have hens to brood them. The only manner in which an incubator can be usefully employed is by hatching an extra number of eggs so as to give each hen a full brood of chickens. Used in this way we have known small incubators very serviceable; but when employed to hatch chickens that are to be reared by artificial mothers, we have never seen them used with advantage.

TO WASH CALICO WITHOUT FADING.—Infuse three gills of salt in four quarts of water; put the calico in while hot and leave it till cold, and in this way the colors are rendered permanent, and will not fade by subsequent washing.

KINDNESS TO HORSES.—A writer in the American Stock Journal, discussing and denouncing the cruelty practiced by men called "horsemen," says:

A gentleman of New York is the possessor of a thousand-dollar horse, whose organ of approbativeness is so prominently active he can be coaxed, but rarely driven against his will.—When the considerate owner enters the stable the horse greets him with a hearty whinny, his only language, which is equivalant to a cheerful expression of delight. He is at once treated to a lump of sugar, which the beautiful and sagacious creature knows is usually carried in a vest pocket—for he rubs his nose there.—On returning from a drive he expects two lumps. As two are invariably forthcoming when unharnessed, it is unmistakable evidence to the horse that his conduct and efforts were satisfactory. The sight of a whip to that animal would be an insult and an outrage to his affectoinate regard for one who looks carefully to his health, security and comfort. Such an instrument of barbarity does not belong to that good man's carriage, and may GOD speed the incoming day when they will only be seen in museums, to illustrate the conditions of countries that ultimately became Christianized.

A SEASONABLE HINT.—It may be of service to some of our readers to remind them, that any time this and next month they can layer their shrubbery, vines, roses, &c., while they are in the prime of their growth. The several spireas, weigalla, Forsythes, Chinese glacine clematis, tecoma, pyrus japonica, honey-suckles, &c., &c.; and in the fruit the grape and the raspberry that do not propogate themselves readily, like the Catawissa and American purple and some red varieties, &c., can all be extensively increased in this way. The Catawissa raspberry costs at present about 25 cents per stalk; and a person having half a dozen can produce fifty the next season by aiding nature in this way. So it is with grapes, the dearest kinds of which with a little labor and care can be increased four-fold yearly. Some varieties of the grape can be propogated easily—like the Hartford Prolific, Concord, Telegraph, &c.; others are very difficult, as the Delaware, Diana, &c.

Those who have have not heretofore increased their shrubs, vines, &c., as here suggested, should attempt it the present season; and if the thing is attended with ordinary care, they will be surprised and gratified at their success.—Germantown Tel.

TRAINING COLTS.—A correspondent of the Western Rural says:

"My mode of training colts is this: I first halter them and put them in the stable. I curry them gently each day; place the harness on them and let them on for a few hours each day for a few days. After they have become accustomed to the harness, I place them before an empty wagon and drive them about a few hours each day for a number of consecutive days. After they are sufficiently subdued, so that I can hitch and unhitch them at will, I use them harrowing in grain, and all light work the first season."

We should be glad to receive practical articles from horsemen on this subject.

GREAT POULTRY SHOW IN ENGLAND.—The most successful poultry shows of this country are small affairs, in size at least, compared with some held in England. At a late exhibition at Birmingham, England, there were 2747 pens or coops of fowls. Of gray Dorkings alone there were 272 coops, and of games 482 coops, with 153 coops of game Bantams. Some choice birds were valued at very high rates. A La Fleche cock was held at £25, and some of the Dorkings as high as £100. Some heavy weights are reported. The prize gander, Toulouse, weighed 37½ pounds; the prize pair of ducks, Rouen, 19½ pounds; the prize turkey, 33 pounds. It can safely be said there is a poultry fever in England equal to anything we have here.

LEAKY TEATS IN COWS.—"J. C." Columbus, Ohio, wites to the American Agriculturist as follows:

"I have a valuable cow that loses her milk; at times it runs from her in streams. Will you give me a remedy?"

Ans.—Milk three times a day, say at five in the morning, at noon, and at eight in the evening. If this does not stop it, have a little collotion, (which is gun cotton dissolved in ether) to be had of all druggists or photographers, and put a drop upon the end of each teat after milking, being careful not to touch it to a sore spot, or the cow will kick. The hole need not be covered except in extreme cases, for a little ring of collodion will shrink in drying and draw the hole together.

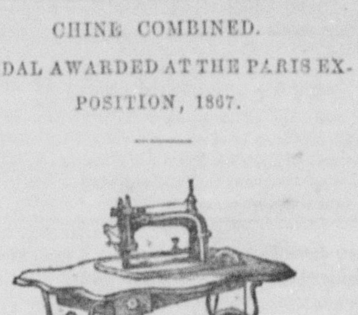
CUT OFF THE LEAVES.—Almost every one who has had any experience in gardening knows the importance of pruning newly planted trees. But in transplanting cabbages, beets, tomatoes and similar vegetables, few ever think of taking off any of the leaves, an operation fully as important as the reduction of the branches of an apple or a pear tree. Let every one who is about setting out any of the seculant plants try the cutting off of the larger leaves, and we think they will never omit it again.—Hearth and Home.

SEWING MACHINE.

AMERICAN BUTTON-HOLE

OVER-SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

MEDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.



In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN ON THE MACHINE GRATUITOUSLY.

Lessons may be taken if desired with a view to test the Machine, or to become better acquainted with it before deciding to purchase. Samples of work will be furnished upon application at
